MediaMobil Strengthens Development of Its Emergency Communications and Defense Business Segments Through OHB's Investment

Bremen, October 27, 2026. OHB and MediaMobil Communication GmbH have entered into a strategic partnership. As part of this collaboration, OHB has acquired a 25 percent stake in MediaMobil through a capital increase.

With this investment, MediaMobil intends to further develop the satellite communication services it has already been providing to civil authorities and operators of critical infrastructure for applications in the fields of emergency communications and defense. The company plans to invest in development capabilities and the further expansion of the MediaMobil infrastructure to provide resilient satellite services.

Thanks to their complementary expertise in satellite systems and communication services, the companies can jointly develop and reliably operate high-performance, innovative satellite communication systems.

This opens up new growth opportunities for MediaMobil in the field of satellite communications. In addition, the companies intend to leverage synergies for the development of new integrated navigation, Earth observation, and data transmission services, the importance of which is growing due to geopolitical developments.

MediaMobil Communication GmbH is a specialized provider of solutions in the field of mobile communication systems and connectivity, headquartered in Bremen. The company develops and operates innovative technologies that enable reliable communication, particularly in challenging environments such as deserts, disaster zones, or on the high seas.

"OHB's investment is a significant step toward the further development of the crisis and emergency communications business segment, in which satellite communications are playing an increasingly important role. In addition, it enables participation in large-scale projects and in the defense sector, where MediaMobil can contribute more than 30 years of experience in the development and operation of satellite services," says Andreas Nil, managing partner of MediaMobil.

"I am very pleased that we are deepening and solidifying our partnership with MediaMobil through this investment. OHB and MediaMobil are two Bremen-based companies that are moving closer together in the strategic future field of satellite communications, complementing each other's expertise—and they are even practically neighbors," says Marco Fuchs, CEO of OHB.
